* The State Board of Education has delayed another adoption of Foreign Language materials until 2003, pending the completion of the Foreign Language Framework. School districts may continue to use 100% of their Instructional Materials Fund (IMF) to purchase Foreign Language Materials that were adopted in 1990 until the next Foreign Language adoption, scheduled for 2003.

NOTE: This would have been the year for the biennial price increase for Foreign Language Materials had they remained on the adopted list. Publishers may have increased their prices, but are still restricted to the "Most Favored Nation Clause," which states they must offer California schools the lowest cost that they offer to any other state. Prices are no longer contracted with the State of California and price lists and order forms will not be available.

** These pre-standards materials were adopted by the State Board for an eight year period, and contractually must remain on the purchase list until June 30th of the applicable ending year.

*** The State Board of Education, at their July 9, 1998 meeting, approved the following as an amendment to their instructional materials fund (IMF) policy. This amendment was extended at their June 8, 2000 meeting to be effective through June 30, 2002. This amendment was subsequently extended to be effective through June 30, 2003. This includes but is not limited to the 1996 ESL list referenced above.

During the 1998-99, 1999-2000, 2000-2001, 2001-2002 school years (July 1, 1998 – June 30, 2002) school districts and county offices of education may spend up to 100% of their IMF on core or supplementary instructional materials from any source suitable for instruction in the "Structured English Immersion" program called for in Education Code Section 300-340 (Proposition 227), provided that: 1) those materials are core materials or supplementary materials, 2) the local school board certifies in a public meeting that the materials are appropriate for the "Structured English Immersion" program 3) the local school board has reviewed the alignment of the materials with the State Board approved content standards in language arts.
